

GCT Site Survey

March 2025 vs. June 2026 (pre-redesign)

Research-driven visits declined; general interest and browsing grew

What brought you to the GCT today?

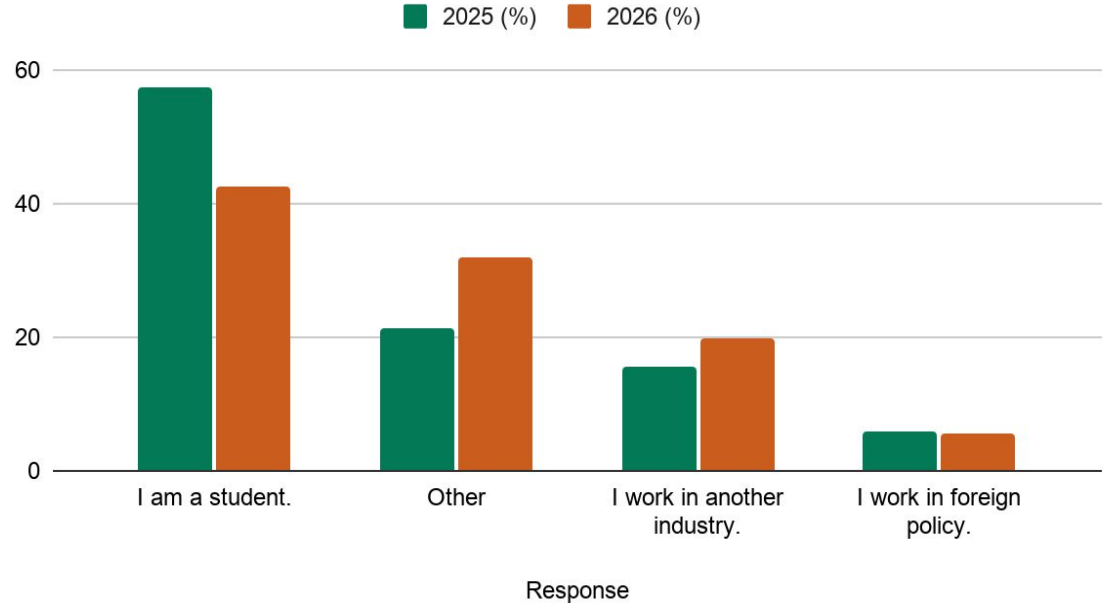

Research-focused visits fell sharply (46.8% → 32.3%). General interest grew 8.4pp and browsing grew 6.9pp. Users are arriving with less specific intent than in 2025.

March 2025 June 2026

Student share fell sharply; "other" professions nearly doubled

What is your profession?

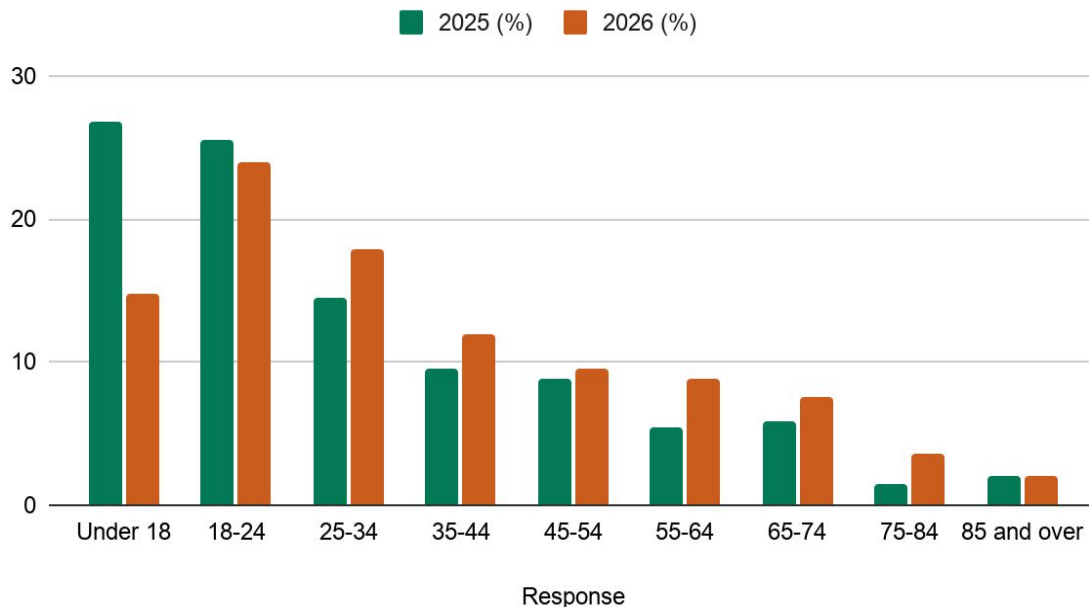

Students fell from 57.4% to 42.6% (-14.8pp), the largest shift. "Other" professions grew 10.6pp. Foreign policy was essentially flat (-0.2pp).

March 2025 June 2026

Under-18 audience shrank; older age groups grew

What is your age range?

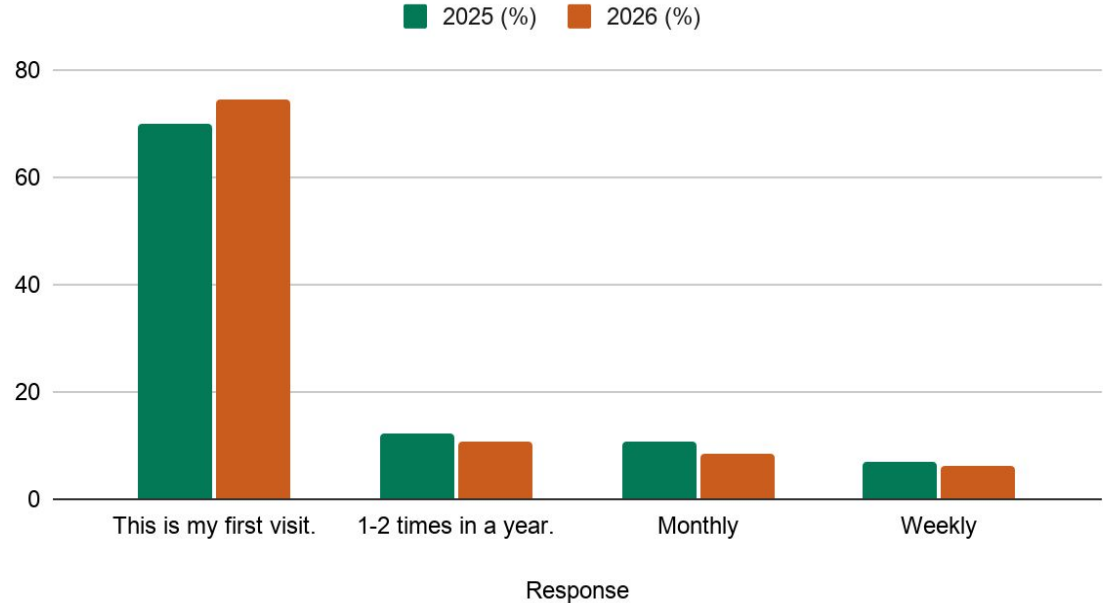

The audience skewed older in 2026. Under-18 fell from 26.8% to 14.7% (-12.1pp), the biggest age shift. 25-34 (+3.4pp), 55-64 (+3.4pp), and 75-84 (+2.1pp) all grew.

March 2025 June 2026

More first-time visitors in 2026; repeat users declined slightly

How often do you visit the GCT?

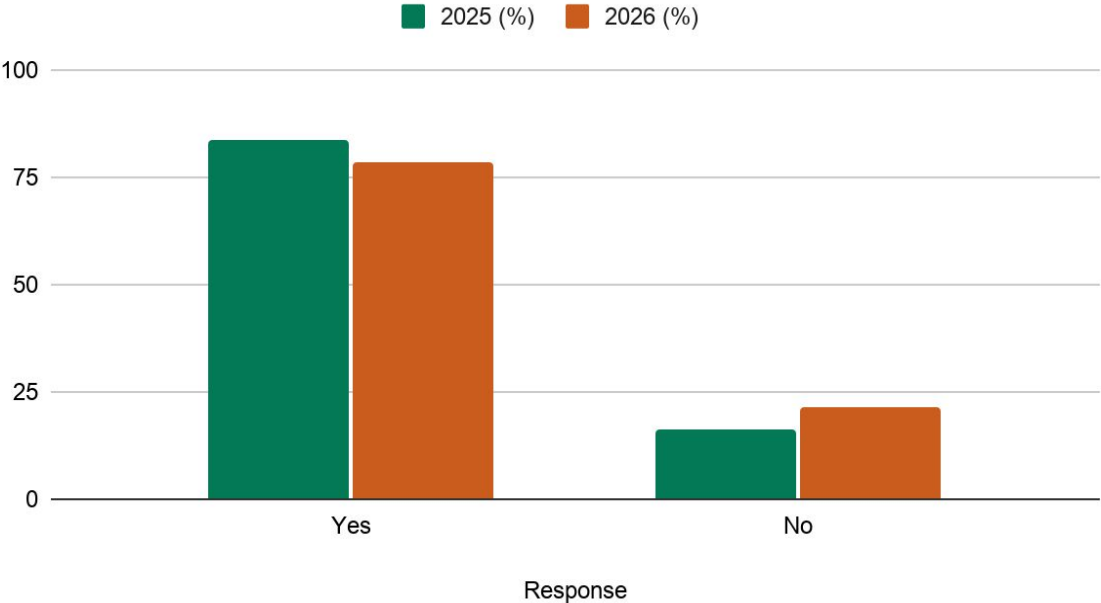

Repeat user base softened year over year. First-time visits grew from 69.8% to 74.5%. Monthly (-2.6pp) and weekly (-0.9pp) regulars both dipped.

March 2025 June 2026

Satisfaction declined: "Yes" responses fell from 84% to 79%

Did you find what you were looking for?

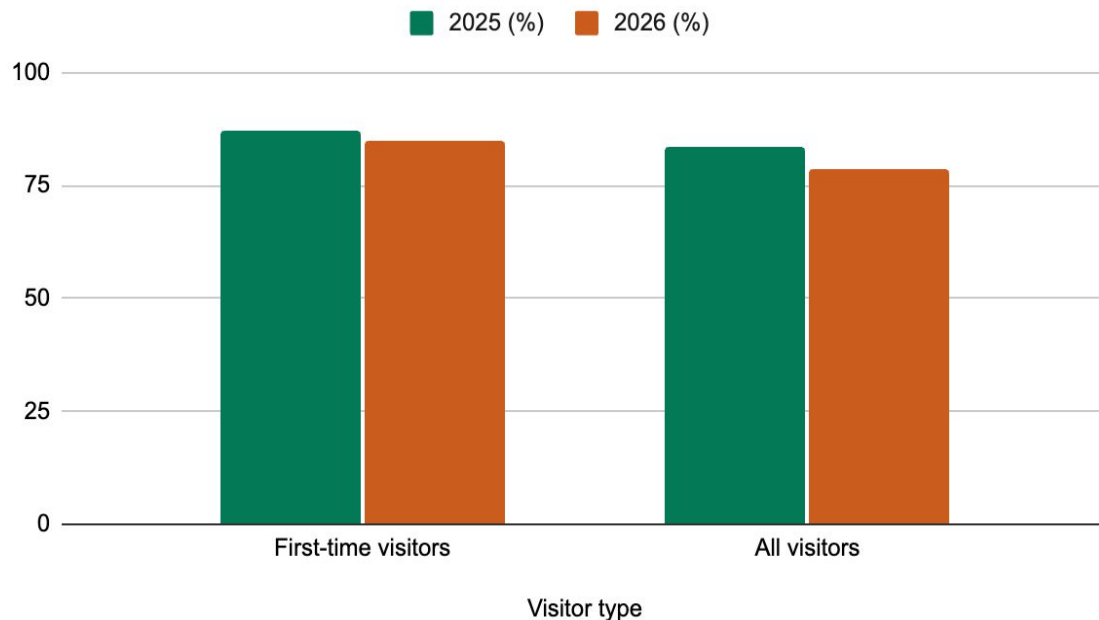

"Yes" responses fell from 83.6% to 78.5% (-5.1pp). "No" responses rose from 16.4% to 21.5%. The drop in satisfaction is worth monitoring in the new site — especially alongside the growth in first-time visitors.

March 2025 June 2026

First-time visitors found what they needed though satisfaction slipped for all

Yes, I found what I was looking for — by visitor type

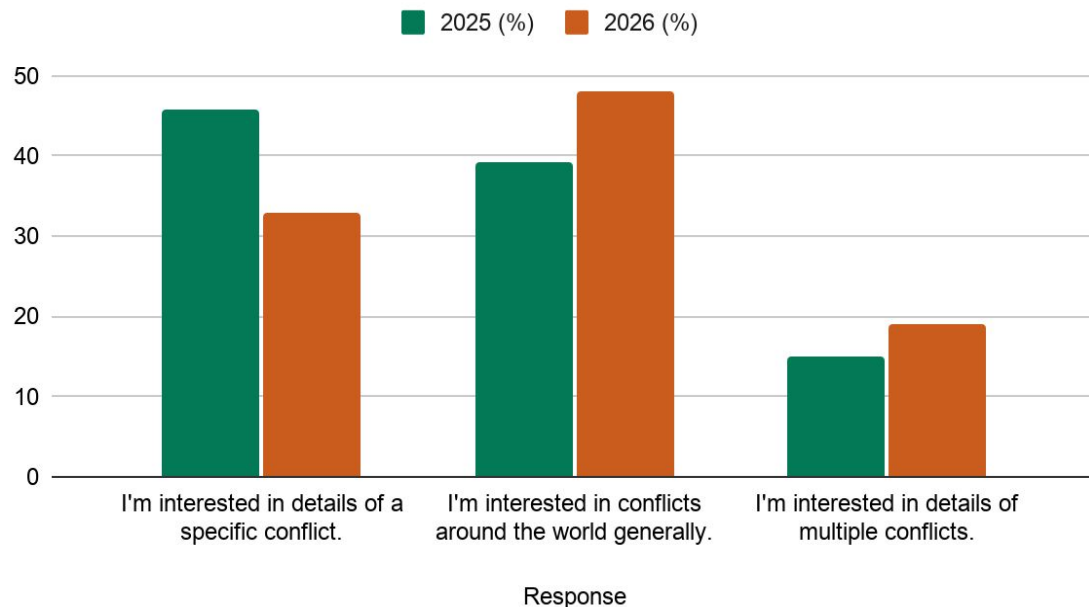

First-timers outperformed overall visitors in both years (87.1% → 84.8%). But the bigger drop was among all visitors (-5.1pp). Repeat users — those with more specific needs — drove the overall satisfaction decline.

March 2025 June 2026

Users browsing more broadly; specific conflict interest declined

Which best describes your goal today?

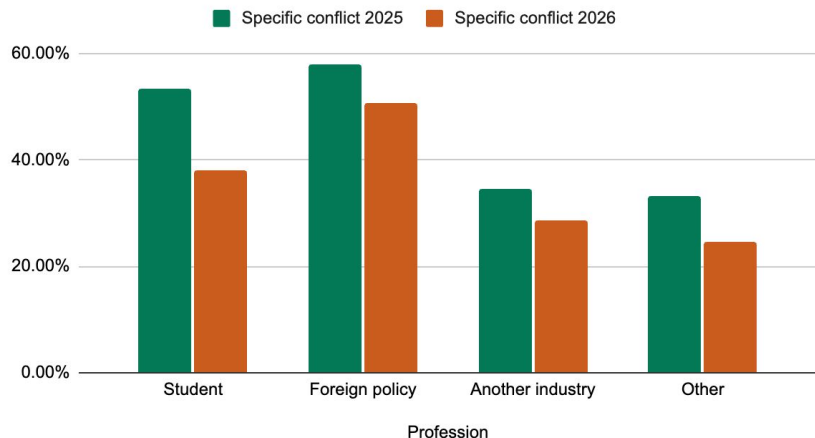

Users in 2026 arrived with broader, less targeted goals. "Conflicts around the world generally" grew from 39.2% to 48.1% (+8.9pp). "A specific conflict" fell from 45.8% to 32.8% (-13pp).

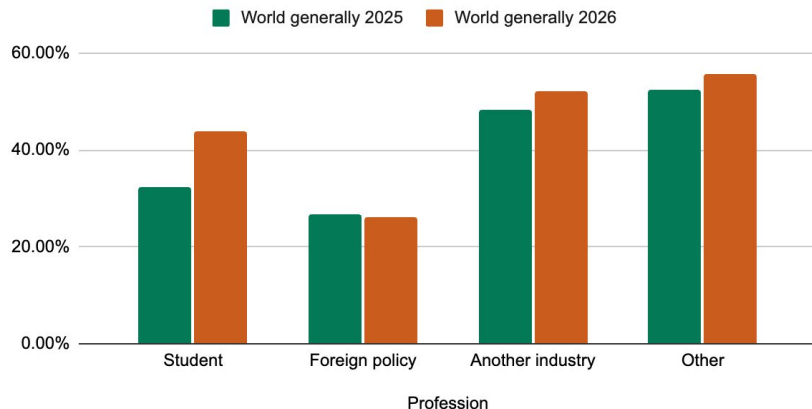

March 2025 June 2026

Students drove the shift from specific to general; FP pros sought broader coverage

I am interested in a specific conflict by — profession

I'm interested in conflicts around the world generally — by profession

Students shifted most: specific conflict goals fell 15.3pp (53% → 38%), world generally rose 11.3pp. Foreign policy professionals held specific conflict focus (51%) but increased multi-conflict interest (+7.4pp). Non-specialist audiences were already world-generally oriented and drifted further. Possible actions: Surface a "world overview" path for general-interest visitors. Add conflict comparison tools for FP pros seeking breadth - all in the works!